The QS Higher Ed Summit: Asia Pacific 2025 was such a refreshing mix of ideas, people, and purpose! I walked away with new partnerships, great conversations, and a head full of possibilities. It's the perfect place where collaboration meets curiosity and every handshake could spark the next big idea.

Quality is a commitment not only by top management but an effort by every stakeholders from student, faculty, staff, alumni and industry partners. Indeed, no man is an island. We collaborate, connect and commit as one.

Absolutely. This summit was not just an event, it felt like a rehearsal of the future. Here, knowledge wasn't simply shared, it sparked, intertwined, and evolved into new visions. I'm returning not only with insights, but with momentum. With strategies that will transform systems, build bridges across continents, and empower young innovators to become global leaders, not someday, but now. My favourite moment? The atmosphere where ambition met action. Where universities didn't speak about rankings, they spoke about impact. Where every dialogue felt like a seed for collaboration, and every handshake, a doorway into tomorrow. Today I leave with new ideas, new partners, and a deeper belief that together, we are designing an era where education is not simply a system, it's a catalyst for humanity's evolution. And yes, you may proudly place my name and title next to these words. I stand by them.

It was the first time that I participated a QS Summit. It was an amazing venue for collaboration and sharing of best practices. My favorite part was the meeting sessions where we can invite and be invited to set a meeting. In my case, I was invited to a meeting and we had a fruitful discussion. We have set plans for collaboration and will surely pursue it. Thank you for this opportunity QS.
